

Northeast charging station rack with IP67

Overview

---

How do I choose the right IP rating for my charging station?

Selecting the appropriate IP rating depends on the installation environment and usage conditions. For indoor charging stations, a lower IP rating like IP44 might suffice. However, for outdoor DC fast charging stations, a higher rating such as IP65 or IP67 is advisable.

Are EV charging stations IP & NEMA rated?

This is because most EV charging stations contain three distinct zones — Infrastructure (back end), Charging-Point (front end), and Low-Voltage (main distribution) — that each require enclosures with specific IP and NEMA ratings. That said, there are some universal rating standards for both IP and NEMA that apply to each zone.

Why do EV charging stations need IP ratings?

These ratings are especially important for EV charging stations, which are often installed outdoors and need to handle tough conditions. An IP rating usually has two numbers. The first number shows how well the equipment is protected from solid objects like dust.

Why is ip67/ip68 important for EV charging?

IP67/IP68 ensures reliability in storms/floods. By choosing the right IP rating, businesses can boost charger lifespan, reduce maintenance costs, and enhance safety —critical for scaling EV infrastructure. Need Future-Proof EV Charging Solutions?
